

Day of Shadowing:

Women in Design Kansas City is an association of women involved in architecture and the design professions who have come together to offer forums, community outreach, mentorship and historical research to our members and to the community.

This year, WID-KC's mentorship committee would like to invite interested area high-school students to participate in the organization's fourth annual Day of Shadowing, September 18, 2009. This event is an opportunity to visit an architecture, interior design, graphic design or other host firm to see the design workplace environment firsthand. Group size will be limited to ten students per firm and each group will take part in a half day of shadowing from 9am-1pm with lunch included. Participating students are asked to bring a list of questions for their firm to the Day of Shadowing. While Women in Design's mentorship committee focuses on reaching out to women and girls, the Day of Shadowing event is open to any student interested in a career in architecture or other design professions.

Based on the information provided below WID-KC will match each student with the most appropriate host firm available. Once a match has been made, the student's high school counselor will be notified and responsible for relaying to the student each student's host firm name, address and contact information.
